the ninth luning, but he was very wild, and only phenomenal support in the first saved the old Dartmouth pitcher from a bad beating. At the outset he began giving manifestations of what was to of to-day's game was due to the intense follow. He passed Ganley and Schlafty, cold. There were no features of batthe first two men up. Lave Cross laid ting or fielding, but Manager Jones, of what ordinarily would have been a perfect sacrifice, but Unglaub, who had come for weird remarks, and Davis was in with the pitch, got the ball, and cut benched. Stupid base running in the it over to third for a force-out. It was a first and second innings lost Detroit wonderful play and undoubtedly pregame right there. Anderson followed score with a fly to deep left, but Schlafly was held at second. Altizer made a big bid conship, 30, 91 12 11 Jones, ef., ..., 0 0 1 10 d. for a hit, putting a hot grounder alor the first base line, but Unglaub aga jumped into the limelight, making pretty stop and delivering the ball Slaze, who covered first.
This let Boston out of a hole, but the

were in trouble again in the third. Aft Smith and Ganley had been retired, Co lins booted a grounder from Schlafly's ba and Lave Cross came on with a two-ba-hit. Carr did the twirling for the Hatchetites, the Southerners never being able to get more than one hit in any inning except the eighth, when two doubles and a triple, coupled with an error and a field er's choice, netted four runs for them. It was a slugging match pure and simple, and North Carolina slugged the oftenest, but the biffs did not come when they were most needed, nor did they go for as many bases as did the Hatchetites getting a triple and a double, and the latter a triple and a single. Campbell and Montgomery, the rival second basemen, furnished the fielding features, both playing all around the second cushion and scooping them up like veterans. The Hatchetites' victory over the Tar Heels will give their stock quite a boost, as the North Carolinians are reckoned as being quite a formidable aggregation.
